Gray's Anatomy is an 80-minute film directed by Steven Soderbergh in 1996 involving a dramatized monologue by actor/writer Spalding Gray. The title is taken from the classic human anatomy textbook, Gray's Anatomy, originally written by Henry Gray in 1858. It was shot in ten days in late January 1996 during a break Soderbergh had from post-production on his previous film, Schizopolis.

A customization point is a code construct that the user can leverage to specialize how a particular library action is handled. A common way of implementing this in C++ is to define a template with the default behavior, and let users specialize it for their own types "e.g., std::hash". This is the story of Spirit X3 and how it lets you specialize customization points without ever leaving ...

Marketing in the digital age is an entirely different discipline to the one learned by most of today's CMOs at the start of their careers. Marketing leaders need to use all the skills they have acquired "as brand-builders, product developers, category experts and communicators" and apply them to a heavily disrupted business environment in which AI, machine learning and data analytics ...

seeing energy fields. I am often asked about seeing energy fields around the human body and the most common questions are... What do you see? How do you see? Do you see coloured auras? Can you teach me? Seeing the energy field of any human being is the equivalent of interpreting their holographic blueprint or biofield.
